Call for Applications: Researcher, Geriatric Palliative Care at the Lausanne University Hospital, Switzerland

The vacant position is placed in the context of research and policy work on advance care planning (ACP). In a project funded by the Swiss Academy of Medical Sciences, a disease-specific ACP program for patients with early Alzheimer’s Disease will be developed in close collaboration with partners in the United States, culturally adapted and piloted in the French-speaking region of Switzerland. Moreover, a collaborative policy project together with the Health Department of the Canton of Vaud aims at launching a comprehensive Cantonal strategy for introducing ACP in the Canton.

The basic condition is an academic degree in medicine, nursing science, psychology, social sciences, bioethics or other pertinent disciplines. A completed PhD is an additional asset. Prior work experience in the health care setting is also desirable. We expect a certain expertise in quantitative and qualitative social science methods. The candidate has to have a very good command of both English and French, ideally being bilingual.
